ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention has a remote machine that collects local-machine logs via a network from a plurality of local machines, each of which has memory that stores local-machine logs generated due to its specific generation factor. This remote machine has a CPU that collects local-machine logs stored on the memory of a local machine only when the priority of the local machine is higher than the preset priority.